Reports to Title IX

23 distinct concerns¹ were reported to the Title IX Office during the 2020-21 academic year (June 1 – May 31). Direct comparisons to previous years are challenging due to the Covid-19 pandemic impacting on-campus residency, and student interactions with other students, faculty, and staff. In past years, most reporting tends to occur in the fall term; however, in the 2020-21 academic year, the university was fully remote during the fall term. Moreover, student reporting options have changed, most notably because of the elimination of the Violence Prevention and Action Center. Therefore, actionable takeaways from this year's data may be limited.

52% were filed by third-party reporters (e.g. mandatory reporters, friends, teammates)

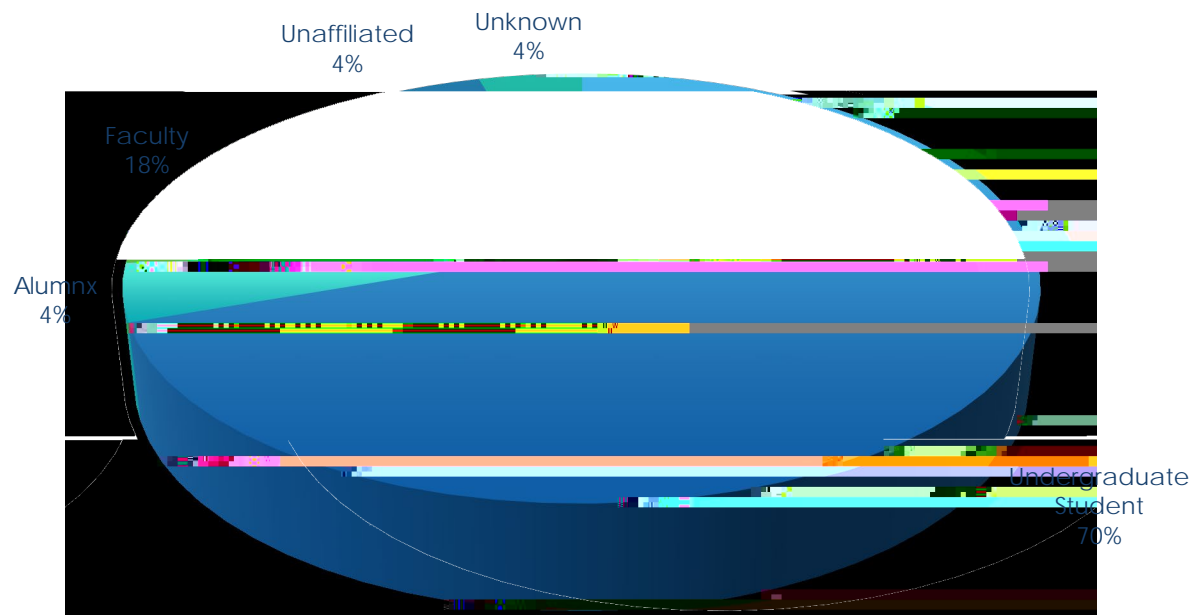

The overwhelming majority of reported concerns involved undergraduate students as the party impacted by the reported violation, with those alleged to have violated policies were more sp[re]7.7.7 (l)8.9 1 (s3142 Tw (u)0.t4Cr5 (v7 0 Td(61d#00BEt7)TJ00BE.005 Tw 0(e)TJ0 9)
